ON THE SUPERFICIAL REMAINS OF ANCIENT JERUSALEM.

The work commenced at Jerusalem opens up a field of archæological discovery hitherto entirely untouched, and can only be compared to the exhumation of Pompeil, the extent of the ruins, if fully explored, being probably much greater, though their state of preservation may not be so perfect.

The actual work done is not, perhaps, great as yet, and an obstacle almost insuperable exists in the fact that a modern city stands above the most interesting part of the ancient town, so that in this quarter nothing can be done, at least at present; but still a considerable portion lies without the walls on the north and south, and it is here that Lieutenant Warren has commenced his work, and already made some progress in it. It is not, however, the amount, but the nature of the work which is important. It has been known for some time past that the whole of the present level of the site of Jerusalem is artificial. Drs. Barclay and Robinson have pointed out those mounds of rubbish varying in depth, and sometimes attaining to 60 or 70 feet, which covers the entire surface of the two hills on which the modern city stands, as well as those belonging to the same plateau on which, as is admitted by all, however different their ideas of its extent and boundaries, the ancient city was situated. It has also been found that the soil consisted principally of a fine limestone debris, and resembled in character the debris formed by that the outline of each of the hills resembles rather that of a gigantic rubbish mound than the natural outline of a limestone range, as as exemplified in the Mount of Olives and the chain of Neby Samwill, in the immediate vicinity of the city.

And yet, although whenever, either by design or during the execution of some independent undertaking, this artificial surface has been removed, in every case some relic of the ancient city has been found, the top of an arch or wall, or the upper part of a tower, still it never seems, until quite lately to have struck any of the writers on the subject, or of the more practical explorers who, during the last fifto m yea s, have done good service by describing minutely those few remains which still appear above the surface of the ground, that beneath it lay an extent of ruins equal in interest and preservation to those of Pompeii, and sufficient, when coupled with the minute descriptions of the Old Testament and Josephus, to lay at rest at once the controversies which have so long been carried on concerning the extent of the city, and the position and character of its principal buildings.

The first blows of the sappers pickaxe have demolished one stoutly contested theory, that of the course of the southern wall of the city which nearly all the writers on the subject have agreed in bringing so far north as to reduce the city to an extent about two thirds of that positively given by Josephus, and have established two important facts—first, that the extent of the ancient town on the south was much greater than it is at present, and covered the whole hill of Zion, the modern wall running nearly over the crest, a course which cost the Arabic architect his life; secondly, instead of

The remains in the city are few and imperfect, but those in the Haram, are almost intact, and present a jumble of architectures which, commencing with the work of Solomon, go and when in its lowest position cover the down with the additions and improvements of Herod, to the patchings and ornamentation When this block was rolled to its highest Herod, to the patchings and ornamentation of Julian and Justinian, the restorations of the caliph Omar and his successors, and the execrable workmanship of the more modern Turkish and Arabic masons. The preservation and wonderful interest of these are points concern-

The most important of these is a gateway,

These towers are built into the city wall, and the disintegration of limestone masonry, and but little can be seen of them, as modern masonry covers some part of them.

In one, however, Dr. Barclay found the remains of a winding staircase of remarkable construction, consisting of flights of steps at right angles to each other, the size of the stones being proportional to that of those in the

It consists of a wall of rge re ated stones, the foundation being broader than the upper part of the wall, and a pier or buttress projecting from this, flush with the face of the foundation. The recess is not made with a horizontal step, but is sloped off with a course of stones, the face of ke that of Jerusalem.

A third ruin stands a little south of this, consisting of a plain wall of large cut stones, ike those of the second style of the Haram enclosure. In this an archway is cut, with a semi-circular arch, and two pillstars of different styles. The arch consists of stones of much smaller size than those of the wall, and is evidently much more modern; each capital of the pilasters is cut out of the blocks of the old wall, one being of Romanesque character, with a bird introduced into the tracery, the other having the peculiar basket-work tracery of the Byzantine capitals; as shown, for instance, in the Mosque of St. Sophia, and elsewhere.

Herod or Solomon, while the rest of the city has mysteriously disappeared, the whole does in fact exist, but at such a level that it is only the temple inclosure that, owing to its enormous height, can like a sphynx before its exhumation, keep its gigantic head above the ground.

It is also worthy of notice that the courses of stones forming the shafts of the pilasters are not continuations of those of the wall, although of equal size, the horizontal joints not being flush, and several smaller stones being natched. heep its gigantic head above the ground.

North of these three hills is a fourth, surrounded originally by the third wall of Josephus, though the exact extent of this wall has not been well determined by any writers. This hill is the Bezetha of Josephus, and, as it is of greater extent, it is also much less elevated than either of the other three.

Such being the general features of the site, two points will be sufficient, together with the outline of the modern city wall, to fix with opening. This construction beautifully illustrates the passage in the Gospel, in which the rolling away of the stone from the door of the sepulchre is mentioned. Above the broad entrance of the outer hall graphed, and the tombs explored and planued. The second group of tombs is in the Kedron valley, south of the Haram, and on the opposite side on the slope of Olivet. Of these the principal are the so-called tombs of Absalom and St. James, traditional names to which monkish legends are attached. The tomb of Absalom is a square monolith, with an excavated chamber at the top, and surrounded with Ionic pilasters supporting an entablature from which springs a dome almost Sarcenic in character, the whole partially buried; and resembling the curious rock cut tombs of Petra, in Arabia Petræa.

It consists of the foundations of two towers of an irregular shape, built of huge stones of the rebated style, characteristic of the oldest masonry of the city.

The tomb of St. James, or of Jacob, is rock cut sepulchre, more resembling the sepul chres of the kings, with an entrance supported on apparently Doric columns, with an inscription in square Hebrew, very imperfect, attributing it to three Jewish brothers, priests, and to two of their nephews. The style resembles that of the Palace of Hyrcanus, and is supposed by De Vogne to be of the time of Herod.

Such are the remains in the city itself; but those of the temple are far more numerous and

This man, from religious fanaticism or some other cause, seems to have devoted himself to the destruction of the Jews. His rictim on the last occasion was on his way to Martin, the port of Tetuan, accompanied by Government muleteers and other Moors. A deputation of the Jewish elders from Tetuan proceeded to Tangier to request the Moorish Minister and the foreign representatives to give them letters of recomnendation to the Sultan at Morocco, whither two or three of them are about to proceed to beg that His Majesty will devise some other measures, in addition to those already adopted without success, in order to put an end to these atrocious outrages. Her Majesty's Minister and some other of the foreign representatives, as well as the Moorish Minister for Foreign Affairs, Bargash, have strongly supported the repre-sentations of the Tetuan deputation."

VIRGINIA IN 1851.-In Virginia in 1851, woman was indicted, tried, and sentenced to two years' imprisonment for teaching a slave to read. The indictment reads as tollows: "And the said——, not having the fear of God before her eyes, but moved and instigated thereto by the Devil, did teach a certain negro woman to read the Bible, to the great displeasure of Almighty God" etc.

The deepest part of the North Atlantic is somewhere between the

THE GRAVE OF MENDELSSOHN .- "It was near the close of October last," says an enthusi-In 1710 died the Prince of Marata, aged above eighty years. The ceremony of his funeral was one of the most revolting ever known in the annals of Eastern superstition; no less than forty-seven of his wives were burned with his corpse. A deep circular pit was dug in a field without the town; in the middle of it was erected a pile of wood, on the left of which, on a couch richly ornamented, lay the body of the deceased prince in his finest robes.

It is in the old Trinity graveyard—the 'Court of Peace,' as the German word beautifully signifies—outside the Halle Thor, one of the gates of Berlin. And a peaceful quiet spot I found it. The gate of the cemetery was locked when I arrived, but the sexton was not far away, and they quickly found him for me in the adjoining the deceased prince in his finest robes. they fetched him, and I thought that the New Jerusalem people, whoever they might be, were to be cavied. Their cemetery was a paradise, to be envied. Their cemetery was a paradise, in which each grave was a lovely flowering garden. Anything more invitingly neat and charming I had never seen before. The old man came along the path with his rake in one hand and his keys in the other, and then we walked on to the gate of the larger cemetery in which Mendelssohn lies. The path lay for about a hundred yards through an avenue of poplars and pines. The first frost of autumn had already brought down many leaves, which formed a thick veilow carnet under our feet. had already brought down many leaves, which formed a thick yellow carpet under our feet, and as we went along others came softly floating down to join their old companions on the ground. No fitter introduction to a graveyard could have been wished. Not a breath was stirring, but all was perfectly calm and still. It was a very fine afternoon; the sun was on the point of setting, and threw red horizontal beams on the mottled trunks of the pines above me and lighted up the vallow follows with a me, and lighted up the yellow foliage with a bright and cheerful glow—cheerful, yet every-

The tombof Felix is in the very middle. It is a plain cross of white stone, about four feet high and and calling upon her gods, flung herself into the midst of the flames.

The second lady was the sister of a prince of the blood, who was present, and assisted at the detestable sacrifice. She advanced to her brother, and gave him the jewels wherewith she was adorned. PRINCE CHARLES AT BAKEU.—A correspon dent, whose letter bears date, "Jassy April 23," writes to the "A. Z. d. I.:" "The arrival Prince Charles at Bakeu was too quick to allow of Prefect Leeca's removing, as vagabonds, the shelterless, wandering villagers, and thus clearing the place: Prince Charles arrived at Baken on the 19th of April. Immediately hundreds of the unfortunate Jews, with their emaciated wives and half naked children, who had been driven from their homee, assembled in front of his residence. These urgent petitioners were not admitted, but the Jewish notables of the city received notice that they would have an audience on the morrow. In the interval the Minister Bratiano sent to them as his emissary the treasurer general of the district, who handed to them a copy of an address of devotion to the Prince, in which they were made to express their entire satisfaction with the present Government, and especially with the administration of the Prefect Leeca. The emissary, not known as a decided enemy of the Jews, gave them to understand that the repentant Government and Prefect and the deceased prince and the reckoned among the deities.

They seemed to be fully aware that a hardy race must be born of with the foundation of the brought to light, and we should have presented to us at one view, in the empty cradle of the ocean, a thousand fearful wrecks, with that fearful array of dead men's skulls, great angelength of the sea, making it hideous with th which were places of common resort. During the "Reign of Terror" in France there were many deeds of daring performed, even by women, and many noble actions of affection exhibited.

But a close observation would betray the fact that the woman had been weeping.

Her eyes were inflamed and red, and she gazed eagerly upon the platform, while a shud-ier passed over her frame as each shock of the glittering knife severed the head from the body of some one who had been unfortunate enough to fall under the ban of the leaders.

The face of the woman was very beautiful, and she wa: young—certainly not more than sixteen or eighteen years of age.

The other female was quite different in character. Her face was fair, but there was a brazen expression about it. She was clad in rags, and as each head fell she would dance, and in various ways express her delight, and then exclaim:

Robespierre advanced close to young Nantes, and gazed earnestly into his face. Then he at a proached Marie, and looked steadfastly in her eyes for a short time.

Each expression of the kind would create a laugh from those who had heard her. But any thoughtful person must wonder how one so young could have become so deprayed.

The first female watched this creature for few moments, and then pressing her way to her ade, she laid her hand upon the shoulder of the wretch, and whispered:

Would you like to become rich at once The temale in rags turned about with a look of surprise, burst into a loud laugh, and then female asked the other : "What shall I call you?"

"Oh! I'm called the Beggar-Girl Marie."

"You live by begging?"
"Yes; but what's your name, and what do you want?"

My name is Marie, the same as your own. "Are you an aristocrat?"

"It does not matter. If you know where we can find a room, lead me to it, and you shall have gold." The pauper led the way into a narrow and filthy street, and then down into a cellar, and into a dark and filthy room. The other female could not but find a sicken ing sensation creep over her, but she recovered herself. After contemplating for a time the apartment and what it contained she asked: "Are you well known in Paris?"

"Yes. Everybody knows Marie the Beggar "Are you known to Robespierre? If so

"Well, that won't be very difficult. Your hair and eyes, and even your very mouth, is like mine. Your face is too white, though. But you can alter that with a little dirt."

They exchanged dresses, and soon the young, rich, and noble Marie de Nantes was clad in the rags of Marie the Beggar-Girl of Paris. The history of Marie de Nantes was a sad one. Her father and two brothers had fallen victims to the remorseless fiends of the Revolu tion, and a third and last brother had been seized. But of his fate she was ignorant, although she expected that it would be similar to that of her other relatives. He had been torn from her side but a few hours before.

After the exchange had been made the pauper looked on the stockingless and shoeless feet and ankles of the lady, and said:

"That will never do. Your feet are too white and delicate. Let me arrange matters."

In a few moments Marie was prepared, and in the filth and rage she emerged into the street.

She now took her course back toward the millotine, and at length reached the square where the bloody work was still going on. Gradually she forced her way through the crowd, and nearer and nearer she came to the scaffold.

She even forced a laugh at several remarks she heard around her, but those laughs sounded She now stood within a few feet of the platform, and swept it with her eyes, but her brother was not there.

The cry was raised : Here comes another batch." Her heart fluttered violently, and she felt a faintness come over her as she heard the tramp

No; I will not away until you tell me why my brother is here and thus bound." Your brother?" was the echo.

"Yes, this is my brother."
"Well, who are you?"

"I am Marie; don't you know me?" The beggar girl?"

"Ay."
"But this is not your brother?"

"It is. Ask him—ask him." Young Antonio de Nantes had turned a scornful gaze upon the maiden, but a light pas-sed across his face, and he murmured: 'Oh, my sister !"

"Is this your brother?" asked Robespierre of the supposed beggar, advancing near her. "It is."

"But the name is down differently." "Then you are mistaken. He is my brother. " Does Marie speak the truth ?" asked Robe

"She does," was the brother's reply. "And you are not De Nantes?" "I tell you I am her brother."

"Why did you not tell us this before?
"I attempted to speak but was silenced." "But you might have declared yourself."

"You would not have believed me." " But your dress?" "It belonged to an aristocrat. Perhaps to him for whom I was taken."

Robespierre advanced close to young Nantes,

The chains were instantly removed and Antonio de Nantes walked down from the scaffold, followed by his sister, while the shouts of those around rent the air, for they supposed that it was a commoner who had thus been saved.

The young man worked his way through the crowd as rapidly as possible, leading Marie.

The had scarcely escaped it before the poor girl tainted from the intensity of her feelings.

The brother scarcely knew what to do, but a hand was laid upon his arm, and a voice said: "Bring her to my room again. She will be

The brother conveyed her to the apartment of the pauper, and asked of her: " Have you seen the female before?

Before the noble sister returned to conscious ness the brother had learned all.

When she did so they both sought secure quarters, after having rewarded the beggar-girl as had been promised.

"Do you think Robespierre was really de-ceived?" asked Marie de Nantes.

"I think not," returned the brother.
"Then why did he order your release?"

"He saw your plan. He admired your courage. Could a fiend have done less?"

"Perhaps this was the case. But if so, it was a deed of mercy, and the only one that man ever did."

"You are right."

Antonio de Nantes was not again arrested, and lived happily with that sister who had so nobly periled her own life to save him by representing the "Beggar-girl of Paris."

BATHING IN THE DEAD SEA.-Though in breadth not exceeding ten miles, the Dead Sea seems boundless to the eye when looking from north and south, and the murmur of you to consent to remain here, and not to show together with the lines of driftwood and fragments of bitumen on the beach, give to its to you again. As recompense for aiding me I waters a resemblance to the ocean. Curious to you again. As recompense for aiding me I to experience the sensations of swimmings in will give you a thousand more. What to put it on and go where I first slept upon the water. After a time the strangeness of the sensation in some measure disapthe chopping go on, and you are afraid you will be taken for an aristocrat if you wear that dress. You want to represent me?" they flew upward; the struggle to recover myself sent my head down, the viley bitter and briny water, from which I had hitherto guarded my head, now rushed into my mouth, eyes, ears and nose, and for one horrible moment the only doubt I had was whether I was to be drowned or poisoned. Coming to the surface, however, I swam to land, making no further attempt to walk in deep water, which, I am inclined to believe, is almost impossible.

> SEREND DEVICE OF A TURKISH MINISTER. The Minister of Finance, whose brusquerie to the dunning workmen at the Mint recently mentioned, has since hit upon a new way of paying old salary debts. Under the arrangement which permits merchants to pay their Customs' dues in kind, a vast quantity of unsold—and unsaleable—miscellaneous merchandize has accumulated in the stores of the Custom-house. The brilliant idea has struck Custom-house. The brilliant idea has struck his Excellency of giving orders to over-clamorous employes for payment in kind out of this fiscal old curiosity shop—an inspiration which appears to have already led to some grotesque results. One bachelor katib is said to have received a box of infants' feeding bottles, another a case of obselets spindings a third another a case of obsolete crinolines, a third box of Rimmel's scents, a fourth a bale of damaged ladies' under-clothing, and so on through a list of nearly fifty during the week.— Levant Herald.

A VOLANIC BAND .- The most extensive vol canic band in the world runs through the Archipelago, taking a part of Sumatra, all Java and the chain of islands to the east of it, most of the Moluccas or the Clove Islands, a small part of Colebes, and much of the Philippines. There are nearly fifty volcanoes in active operation, besides numbers which have become extinct. In 1815 there was a tremen dous eruption from the Tomboro mountain in Sumbawa, the fifth island of the Sunda chain which is said to have destroyed 12,000 people but there are continual outpursts from all the working volcanoes.

OUR FUTURE EXISTENCE.

It were vain and presumptuous to endear of to penetrate into futurity any further than reve lation and reason warrant and encourage us to do. But if we believe in a future existence we are certainly allowed, nay it is necessary that we should form some idea of what this state of existence will be; since it is impossible to believe a thing unless we have at least some conception of what it is, so as to satisfy our mind that our faith is grounded not on a mere phantom, but on a reality. As we can form an opinion of invisible things by judging from the various positions; this is as it should be the visible, we may be allowed to compare the enjoyment of a future state by that of a discovery of light from amidst a state of deep darkness, which an approach to the presence of God will afford.

The revelation of his presence infers of course a complete diffusion of light and knowledge among all who partake of that presence This unquestionably forms a primary ingredient is the source of all our present misconduct, and all our misfortunes. The heart of man is dark, and in the darkness of his heart is the seat of his corruption. We are unable to discern what is truly good. Perpetually employed in search of happiness, we are perpetually misled by false appearances of it. The errors of our understanding impose upon our passions, and in consequence of the wrong directions which our passions take, we are betrayed into a thousand disorders. Hence, sensuality, covetousness, and all the violent contests with others about trifles, which occasion so much misery and so many crimes in the world. Once let the perfect sources of knowledge and truth be opened to us; suppose us to be placed in the presence of that Being who is the source of light and life, and illuminated by light derived immediately from Him; presently all our former errors would fly away as mists are dispellel by the rising sun. Our whole nature would be changed and reformed; the prejudices which obscured our understanding would be removed; the seductions of our passions would disappear; rectitude and virtue, having nothing then to obstruct their entrance, would take entire possession of our heart.

only banishes miseries which were the effects of former darkness, but also confers the most exquisite enjoyment. The knowledge afforded us at present serves to supply our most pressing wants, but it does no more. It is always imperfect and unsatisfactory, and often leaves much painful anxiety. Narrow is the sphere within which the mind can see at all, and even there it cannot see with clearness and certainty. But when it shall be enlarged beyond this dusky territory, let loose from this earthly prison, and in God's light permitted to see light, the most magnificent and glorious spectacle must open to the view of the purified spirit. What must it be to behold the whole stupendous scene of nature unveiled, and its hidden mysteries disclosed! To trace the wise and just government of the Almighty through all those intricacies which had so long perplexed us! To behold his hand conducting the whole universe with its myriads of worlds now unknown to us; and throughout all the regions of boundless space to view wisdom and good ness perpetually acting and diversifying its operations in forms of endless variety, must be the consummation of all imaginable felicity

If we may be allowed to draw another comparison from one of our human and earthly sensations to that celestial enjoyment which is reserved for the just and good, it is that of parental love and affection, the "compassion of returns of over $1,000 by our co-religionists God on those who fear him, as a father com of Sacramento City and County is $32,612, and passionates his children." His presence must those of thirteen Counties adjoining, but beof course diffuse love among all who are per- longing to the same revenue district, amounts mitted to dwell in it. Were man a single soli- to $44,555, being a total of $77,169.

knowledge would rectify and improve to the highest all his faculties. But we may reasonably suppose that both here and hereafter he is connected with other beings, and that the felicity of that society is constituted by the perfection of love and goodness flowing from the presence of the God of love.

Hence follows the entire purification of human nature from all those malevolent passions which have so long rendered our abode on earth the abode of misery. We greatly deceive ourselves when we charge our chief distresses merely to the account of our external condition in the world. From the disadvan tages attending it, it must be admitted that we may often have been exposed to suffer. By the arrows of misfortune we may have been wounded, and have languished under informities of the body; but on this we may depend that the worst evils of our present condition arise from the want of goodness and love; from selfish passions and the irritation which these occasion when working within ourselves, and more justly, will not attend divine service on the distress which they produce when breaking the Sabbath." out upon us from others; in short from that corrupted state of temper, and that reciprocation of jealousies, suspicions, and injuries which is ever taking place among the societies of men. Could we banish distrust, craft, and uncharitableness from the earth, and form all mankind into an assembly of just and benevolent beirgs : could we inspire every heart with kind affections, and render every one friendly and generous to his neighbor, we would banish nance-Paradise would return, and perfect happiness would reign. Now such are the effects which the immediate presence of the God of love must produce on those who partake of it. In that temple of eternal love which his presence consecrates, no sound but the voice of harmony can be heard; no appearances ever present themselves but those of peace and joy.

(TO BE CONCLUDED IN OUR NEXT.)

B'NAI B'RITH ELECTIONS .- During the weel several lodges of this city held their semiannual elections for officers, and we learn that a deal of interest has been manifested by mem bers of the Order to select the best men for for the Order of B'nai B'rith will largely in crease in numbers on this Coast, and it will become, as it is in the East, one of the institutions in which all Israelites should take pride. On the third Sunday in July, District Grand Lodge No. 4 will hold its annual session in Covenant Hall, and we hope that the country as well as the city members will attend in full numbers, as business of importance to the Order will be brought forward for their con sideration and action. Following are the elected officers of the Lodges that have held their elections:

> REGISTRATION OF BIRTHS .- At the last meet ing of the Board of Supervisors an ordinance was passed, to take effect on the 1st of July, that the parents of a child shall have the same registered at the Health Office, and for noncompliance with this ordinance certain penalties are affixed. Would it not be well to act apon the suggestions we made some time ago, to have some person appointed, at a moderate salary, by the different congregations and societies, to whom all births, deaths, marriages, arrivals, etc., might be reported, and in a very short time statistics concerning our co-religion ists of this Coast might be obtained, and such will be at a future day of some importance.

JUVENILE REUNION .- The seventh reunion of the juvenile pupils of Fuller & McCarthy, pro fessors of dancing, will be given at Union Hall this evening. A very large number of children, aged three years and upwards, will participate in the various faccy and figure dances. After the exercises are over adults may trip the light fantastic in the large hall.

The result is highly gratifying. The total receipts were $4,400, and the net amount realized for the benefit of the Congregation Beth Israel is about $2,700. This amount is more than suffi cient to pay off all encumbrances on the property of the congregation. He also writes I have been informed that our worthy minis ter, Rev. Dr. Schwab, who has been but one and half years in America, will on Sunday next, (June 9th.) for the first time, deliver a discourse in the English language. It is the intention of the Rev. Dr. hereafter, in addition to the regular Sabbath (Saturday) service, hold meetings alternate on Sundays. I have no doubt he will sucseed in drawing large audiences, as there are many who would attend the Synagogue on Sunday who cannot, or to speak > PAREPA ROSA.—This world-renowned artiste arrived with the steamer this week. On the evening of her arrival she was serenaded by a large number of musicians, in appreciation of her merits. To-morrow evening she gives her first concert at Platt's Hall, at which we expect to see a great rush. Those who desire to hear a fine artiste should not fail to attend these concerts. The programme for to-morrow evening is a choice and select one, and the lovers of music will testify their appreciation by crowding the hall, to hear the most eminent artiste that has ever come to our shores.

A FIRE AND Loss .- On Wednesday night (May 13th.) about two o'clock there was an alarm of fire in Ward 4, which on examination proved to be caused by the accidental burning of a private staircase in the large dwelling corner of Coming and Bull streets, occupied as an academy by Rev. Dr. Myers, the Jewish Rabbi. The doctor had been reading in his study until after twelve o'clock, and when he retired all seemed quiet and secure. But Dr. M. is a great smoker, and he probably knocked a spark from his segar among the papers in his library. He was awakened by the noise of a nurse getting up to give medicine to a sick child, and as soon as he was roused he found that the house was full of stifling smoke. Hurrying his wife and children down stairs and waking the servants, he took an axe and proceeded up a private staircase to what he sup-posed to be the locality of the fire. The smoke was so dense that he had to feel his way, and first became aware of the seat of the fire by the heat of the wall. Striking the wall with out of the study, and was carried by a strong draft directly up the stairway. With the aid of his servants, the doctor succeeded in checking the conflagration, but it was not until after the arrival of the engines that it was entirely in the flames being very great. The loss most seriously felt by Dr. Myers was the manuscript of a work on which he has been engaged for a long time, entitled "Jewish Calendar for every Sabbath, festival and fast, with the portions of the law and prophets read on those days, besides other interesting matter. The doctor had completed thirteen years of the work, all of which was destroyed by the flames and will have to be done over again .- Charleston Mercury. ROUMANIA.-Minister Bratiano, who lately travelled from Jassy to Bakau, from where so many Israelitish families had been driven into an exile, was received at that city with very unfavorable demonstrations; he was aimed at with decayed apples, his coachman drawn from his seat and maltreated by the mob, and it was by the greatest exertions of the municipal force only, that continued excesses were frustrated. A day after his departure, a large number of the populace gathered in troupes and invaded the houses of Jews, throwing stones in the windows and trying to demolish their dwellings, committing besides these, several unpardonable brutal acts. In consequence of these excesses, two companies and a squadron of Roumanian soldiers have been garrisoned at Bakau.

ITALY.-The Chief Rabbi, Marco Mortara, has received an especial mark of respect from the Italian Government—the decoration of the order Mauritius en Lavanus.

SCHABBATAI ZEBI.

Among the impostors who, from time to time retended to be the true Messiah, Schabbata bi may be said to have obtained an unenvia ble notoriety. We extract the following par-ticulars, relative to his adventures, from Jost's History of the Jews. He was born in Smyrna. in the year 1625, of very humble parents, but already in his boyhood he was observed to possess great mental powers. At the age of fifteen he was well versed in the Talmud, and he had scarcely reached the age of eighteen when he was acknowledged as a teacher of Cabbaleh. Both old and young come to listen Cabbaleh. Both old and young came to listen to his mystic expositions, which he frequently delivered in the open field, amid the insults of the Turkish mob. In his habits he was extremely abstemious, fasted frequently, and bathed generally at midnight, in the open sea. All bis movements bore a mysterious appearance. He used odoriferous herbs, and pretended that the Patriarchs had annointed him; by such means he prepared his brethren for his ultimate inten tions. In his twenty fourth year he revealed to his pupils that he was the true Messiah, and that he would save Israel from Islamism and Christendom. In order to prove his mission he publicly pronounced the ineffable name of God, which caused the greatest consternation among his auditors. The Beth-din of Smyrns declared him an outlaw, and he fled to Saloinki where he was received with enthusiasm. But even here, his extravagant claims alienated from him the sympathy of his friends, and he was again compelled to flee to Athens, Morea, Alexandria, Alkahirah, and, being everywhere persecuted, he at last settled in Jerusalem where for several years he held forth his cab balistic expositions. A certain Nathan Benja min, from Gaza, joined him, as the forerunnel of the Messiah, and sent forth pastoral letters to all the Rabbins of Jerusalem, informing them that the Messiah had been born in Smyrna and that he would soon appear in full glory The Messiah himself remained about fourteen years in Jerusalem, in total inactivity, until at last he gave forth that a certain young woman waited for him in Egypt, that she was a Polish girl, who had been put into a convent by the Christians, when she was removed by a spirit to a cemetery, and from this place had gone first to Amsterdam, and afterwards to Egypt in order to become the wife of the Messiah treated her with the same indifference as he did two other wives whom he had married and abandoned. At last he declared himself the Messiah it

Jerusalem, and maintained that he had come to realize Israel's expectations. The Rabbins lost no time in taking measures to frustrate his plans. They pronounced on him sentence of death, and as he fled to Constantinople, they wrote to the Beth Din of that city, when twenty five Rabbins confirmed the judgment of the former judges, and forwarded their decree to Smyrna for ratification. But in this city the followers of Schabbatia Zebi had remained idle; and when he arrived there, they all receiv-MAGDIRE'S OPERA HOUSE.—During the week ed him with the greatest reverence; they Miss Lucille Western appeared in several of kneeled before him, kissed his feet, and were her favorite characters to good houses. The enraptured with his discourses. Four deputies stock company now at this house is really a came from Italy to see the Messiah, who had double company and the best on the Coast been announced by Nathan. The sentence of death was disregarded, and no one ventured to assail the man who was now parading the streets, followed by thousands with banners and songs Frequently, during the night, would they follow New invoices of Jules Jurgensen watches at him with similar manifestations of reverence by force, and held forth a violent oration against the four principal Rabbins of the city. One of them he succeeded in getting over to his party, and the excitement caused thereby was so great that the opponents of the Messiah were of morality, humanity and toleration! compelled to leave Smyrna. His fame spread rapidly. Deputies came from all parts to pay him homage, and to bring him presents; and so great was the crowd, that frequently they had to wait weeks before they could obtain admission. In the synagogue prayers were offered up for his long life, and young men and women began to read the Zohar (the Bible of special claims on the affections of the English the Cabbalists) by which they believed to become is ired and to prophesy. This mania influenced those who had hitherto stood aloof. but now joined the successful party. Only one person ventured to report the deceptions to the Vizier, but the false Messiah knew by his cunning how to bring ruin on the head of the Schabbat i Zebi now married for the fourth time, and this time the daughter of a certain philosopher, Joseph. The Rabbis excommuni cated the latter for giving him his daughter, which induced him to embrace the Mahommedan religion: and this example was followed by many Jews. The Messiah, notwithstanding all this, visited the synagogues, until the Grand Vizier, displeased at his conduct, ordered him to be imprisoned in a castle in the capital. Even here he received visitors, and taught the Kabbalah : but the authorities soon put a stop Roman Catholic servant to enter the service the axe it broke through, and the flame burst to this, by inflicting fifty lashes on each of his visitors. The Rabbis at last succeeded in persaading the Vizier to send him to Bosnia, where he died; but it is not known whether he died a natural death or was murdered. His death took place ten years after his apostacy. extinguished. The doctor and his family had Even his bitterest enemies could not deny that a very narrow escape of their lives, the risk of he possessed uncommon abilities; and his being suffocated by the smoke or perishing private life was to a certain extent praiseworthy Public adulation may have been the original cause of his high pretensions. He failed in the execution of his plans, but nevertheless left numerous followers; and from this point of Twenty Years." It was to contain the date of view, he is entitled to a place in the history of After his death, his followers were materially increased by the very men who opposed him during his lifetime, and adopted a religious system which probably originated with Schabbatai Zebi himself. Nehemiah, who had behe died in Amsterdam, blind and poor. Even during the life of Schabbatai Zebi, his principles had been promulgated in North Africa Michael and Raphael Kardoso, in Tripoli, were his principal apostles, and were perhaps the cause of the persecution against the Spanish congregations. Their followers embraced the Mohammedan religion, and are therefore no longer to be reckoned among the Jews. But in the East, Judaism still remained the religion of this sect. Jacob, a son of Joseph, and a brother in law of the false Messiah, was appointed chief of the sect; and he now went, together with a certain Horentino, from place to place, to make proselytes. After his death, his son, Beraejah, took his place, and lived until the middle of the last century. In Smyrna, one of the faithful, Daniel Isreeli, maintained that the Messiah had not died, and prophecied his reappearance. Two Kab balists took advantage of this prophecy to extend the new doctrine to Poland and Germany. There they had themselves presented to the Emperor, and explained to him their intentions which were nothing less than to convert the whole of the Jewish nation to Christianity. They made proselytes; and therefore, while in the East this sect professed Islamism, in Poland they became Christians. Their principles are represented to be as follows: They acknowledged the divine origin of the holy Scriptures and contemplated the whole of creation as an emanation from the Deity; the world being the mage of the Deity, and man the image of the world. The spirituality of man is a proof of the truth of faith. From without no proof can be adduced or traced. The working of the human soul is an image of the works of God. In order to renuer Himself comprehensible to man, God appeared among them as man, and thereby imparted an idea of his essence. The mutual love of God and man is the point of contact between them. In love he created the world-in love he pardoned their sins. He effects this atonement by a human representation of himself, and appears in perfection in prophets, saints, and other good men. Faith is the centre in which all ideas unite. The fate of nations depends on religion. Only the good can be permanent; and therefore the three principal religious systems remain in existence pecause they contain whatever is good—especially the Christian religion-which, by loctrines, has attained the highest degree of

LORD BROUGHAM.

A life whose history has been intimately blended with the history of this country for upwards of half a century has just past from mortality into immortality. Henry, Lor Brougham, died on the 7th of May at Cannes.

It would be ungracious is this event were passed over without a few words of record in these columns, as a tribute of respect to the memory of a truly great man, the champion of two causes which should be dear to the heart of every reflecting Jew in this empire-the cause of Religious Liberty and the cause of Public

Fifty years ago these causes were not so fashionable, nor were the principles involved in them so generally well received as at present At that time their advocates had a hard battle to fight against intolerance, illiberality, ignorance and indifference. It was in those dark and difficult days that Lord Brougham became the champion of Freedom of Conscience and of Public Instruction. He fought the battle manfully, and he fought it successfully. His mighty mind grasped at once the immense exigencies of the era, which the puny capacities of many of his cotemporaries failed to appreciate. Happily he lived to see his labors crowned with triumph, and his principles stamped by the impress of popularity, and the sympathy of the intellectual world.

What matter, then, if in reviewing his career we find that he belonged in fact to no political party? His biographer in the Standard has most aptly urged this explanation of the apparent vacillations of his political course. He might not have been an adharent on whom the whippers-in of Tory or Whig ranks could always safely reckon, but the party of Humanity could invariably rely on him, because throughout his long life he was always found in its pha-

Believing as we do that the principles of personal freedom, of merciful and equitable jurisdiction, and of the horest rights of man originate in the Jewish Revelation; and that public opinion, in its progress towards their recogni-tion and their improved application, is in effect accepting the Divine instructions of the teacher of Sinai and his interpreters, we should fail

There is one detail of his career which we cannot omit to notice. He was one of the founders and most active friends, and, we believe, for many years President of University College, London, the first academical institution which adopted the principle of freedom of conscience in education, and which has, therefore.

For some years past his place in the public arena has been vacated. And now his place among living men "knows him no more. the active world, he has become to use his own eloquent expression, "the shadow of a shade." But there is no coldness in any shade, nor darkness in any shadow, on which fall the gleams of a noble memory and the sunshine of a happy immortality !- J. Ch.

THE AUSTRIAN CONCORDAT AND THE JEWS .-The following incidents, conveyed in the letters which we translate, will show the vexations to which the notorious Concordat subjected the Austrian Jews, and from which recent legislation has liberated them. The first letter is a copy of a remonstrance addressed by the mayor of one place to that of another, who forbade a of a Jew to whom she had engaged herself, and from whom, according to the local custom, she had accepted an advance of a portion of her wages. "We are quite astonished at your remonstrance. You probably are not aware that the law forbids Jews to keep Christian servants. For this reason we send you back the advance made by the Jew, and request you to return it to him, intimating that he may appeal against the existing law." The other letter was addressed by a Catholic priest to a Roman Catholic gentleman who had engaged a Jew to give his children lessons in arithmetic: Conformably to the Council of Trent, and a recent decree of the Minister of Public Worship, Jews are forbidden to give instruction to Roman Catholic children, whether in languages, or any other elementary branch of knowledge, or in manual works; the Jews must remain excluded from every branch of teaching. You, trayed him, now preached his doctrines, and therefore, hereby receive an official warning, induced many to join this Kabbalistic sect, until either to send your children to the Catholic school, or get them instructed by a Roman Catholic teacher."

ROUMANIA.—The General Correspondence of Vienna announces that M. Bratiano, brother of the Boumanian Minister, is going on an extraordinary mission to the capital of Austria and thence to Paris and London, to give the three Cabinets some explanations as to the late events of which Jews have been victims in Moldavia. The Roumanian Country offers some just reflections on the conduct of the Govern ment of the Principalities with respect to the regretable events which have lately there. The writer remerks that the best means the Administration could adopt to prove its sincerity when it disavows the authors of the bill against the Jews would be to dismiss the public agents compromised in the matter. "The Government, on the contrary," adds that ARRIVED FROM PARIS .- One of the most enterplising firms of this city is S. Figel, No. 3 Mon tgomery street. He is determined to surpass any hing in this city in manufacturing boys' suits. He has, at a great expense, engaged the services of a Parisian cutter, who brought with him all the latest styles from Paris. It is a well known fact that the work done at this establishment is far superior to any other house in this city. The reputation of this firm is sufficiently established, and does not need any more recommendations from us. Examine his stock, and you will surely purchase.

NOTARY PUBLIC.—We call the attention of readers to the card of Mr. Philip Mahler, Notary Public, (a co-religionist.) and can only recommend this gentleman to everybody. All work in his line will be promptly executed at liberal prices. Do not forget to call at his office, 619 Merchant street.

MARY C. CAVE, Plaintiff, vs. ALFRED CAVE, Defendant. Action brought in the District Court of the Fif-teenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and or the City and County of San Francisco, and the Complaint filed in said City and County of San Francisco, in the office of the Clerk of said District.

San Francisco, in the omes of the clerk of said District.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Alfred Cave, Defendant.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named Plantall, in the District Court of the Fifteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the City and County of San Francisco, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days, (exclusive of the day of servi e.) after the service on you of this summons, if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain a decree of this court dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between the plaintiff and defendant herein, and for costs of suit.

existing between the plantan and for costs of suit.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said plantiff wil apply to the court for the relief demanded therein.

Given under my hand and seal of the District.
